Dr. Ray part 2. About family.

It is understandable that the nonreligious would look askance at parents who challenge the childbearing allowance numerically; their perspective is slanted by society's. One would expect those of faith to better understand the God-ordained gift of children. Sadly, many now observe family life through a lens more secular than faith-lit.

Those who religiously shun talking politics or religion feel unrestrained license to opine about the more personal of someone's life decisions. The clichés are predictably similar — thought clever but, in fact, tiresome. "Are they all yours?" "Don't you have a TV?" "So, this is it, right?" (This last question sometimes follows child number two, almost always coming after child number three.) "You've got your boy and girl [the "complete" family], so are you finished?" Sometimes the intrusions come with an edge: "I hope you're not thinking of more?" "How can you give each the attention it needs?" "What about college?" (The financial often lurks.)

Verbally cornering veteran mothers is not without risk. After all, these are women uncowed by years of living in close proximity to multiple little human beings. A rude remark or two can be swatted away as effortlessly as a 7-year-old's tattle. "Is this all your family?" "Of course not; our oldest is at home with the triplets." "Haven't you ever heard of birth control?" "Yes, I've heard of it. Why?" "Do you know what causes this?" "No, please tell me." "Is your husband going to get fixed?" "I don't think he's broken." "Are you going to have more?" "Well, not right this minute." "Don't you think you have too many children?" "Which one should I give back?" "I'm glad it's you and not me." "I think my kids are glad too."

Ouch! Sometimes the concerns are for Mom: "I just worry about you." "Be careful you don't overload yourself." "How's your stress level?" "Can you manage it all?" "Are you doing, okay?" Even when well-meaning, these questions imply that Mother doesn't quite understand what she's doing to herself. Isn't she sacrificing herself for all these children? Well, yes, she is.

That is exactly her intent. It's good to answer sour with sweet: "A soft answer turns away wrath" (Proverbs 15:1). "We've always been grateful for our kids." "We want whomever God gives us." Sometimes a good response is no response — a smile, a shrug, a lost look. Lost looks silently say, "I don't understand your point." What else can anyone expect from someone who has deliberately fried her brain circuitry with so many offspring?

In the end, what wins over naysayers most is the children themselves. Parents of plenty typically invest themselves plenty in their families. In time, others see that your children are not emotionally and materially shortchanged. Rather, they are maturing into individuals admired by those who once didn't understand you.

What Does 20+C+M+B+26 Mean? | Christmas Tradition Explained

Most Catholics are familiar with the Solemnity of the Epiphany of the Lord, commemorating the three Magi's visit to the infant Jesus. For centuries, the faithful have marked the entrance to their homes with a symbol of faith, asking that Jesus Christ bless all who live within the home. The message is as follows, [the first two digits of the year] + C + M + B + [the last two digits of the year]. The "C", "M", and "B" stand for the names of the three Magi – Caspar, Melchior & Balthazar, and the "+" represents the cross. For example, in 2026 people will mark "20 + C + M + B + 26" in chalk above their front door. The message also abbreviates the Latin phrase, Christus Mansionem Benedicat, meaning "May Christ bless the house."

For centuries this tradition has been carried out by our brothers and sisters in faith around the world. Any color chalk used can be used. This is a wonderful tradition to adopt to show all who visit your home that your faith is strong as you enter the New Year!
